Former Planned Parenthood staff confirm what Live Action investigators had found: The real purpose of ultrasound machines at Planned Parenthood is to assist with abortions, not to help women who want to have healthy pregnancies.

Sue Thayer, a former Planned Parenthood center manager, said that even when using the ultrasound for abortions, most Planned Parenthoods would never print a picture from the machine: “And of course, not only would they never print a picture, but they turn the monitor away so the mom can’t see it.”

Why would they turn the monitor away? Isn’t being fully informed how you truly get to exercise “choice”?

Marianne Anderson, a former nurse at Planned Parenthood in Indianapolis, said Planned Parenthood staffers themselves would even be surprised at how developed the babies they were killing were: “Some of the girls would look at those pictures of the ultrasounds and talk about it like, oh, there really is a head, there really is a baby in there.”
